

National Public Lands Day

A National Environmental Education Foundation Program

NATIONAL PUBLIC LANDS DAY
Helping Hands for America's Lands
SEPTEMBER 25, 2010

Sponsored by TOYOTA

NORTHROP GRUMMAN

Find us on facebook

twitter

You Tube

flickr

National Public Lands Day

A National Environmental Education Foundation Program

To find National Public Lands Day events at a favorite place near you, visit www.publiclandsday.org.

There's a special joy in getting our hands dirty when it helps keep our land beautiful. Consider that one-third of the land in America is ours—public land where we can all hike, bike, climb, swim, explore, picnic or just plain relax. National Public Lands Day is an opportunity to spruce up these lands while helping us get back to some of these places we love.

On September 25th, an estimated 150,000 volunteers around the nation will build trails and bridges, pull invasive weeds, plant trees, remove trash and have fun getting back to nature. At the same time, they'll get quite a workout on America's public lands, the gym with a view. They'll learn about the impact of climate change on parks and lands as well as take part in a service endeavor fed with the energy of volunteers in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and U.S. territories.

Join the thousands who will take part in the 17th annual National Public Lands Day and help do your part for America's lands.

National Environmental Education Foundation

Knowledge to live by